My dear Dr. Stevenson:

As you well know, we have probably the finest general collection of orders and decorations that there is in the world. Of some countries we have a complete showing, of other countries we lack some of the more modern orders. In recent years there have been several governments that have sent us a complete set of all their decorations in all of the different classes.

I understand that you are leaving for Egypt and we were wondering at this Museum, whether you might not be able to interest some official in the Egyptian government to present to this Museum the various Egyptian orders, as we have none from Egypt. In fact, I think this is the only country that is not represented in our collection.

Very truly yours,

Curator
